INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

DEPARTMENT OF BASIC ISLAMIC SCIENCES

Basic Islamic Sciences is a department where high-quality academic studies are conducted and high religious education is given in the fields of Tafsir, Hadith, Kalam, Islamic Law, Arabic Language and Rhetoric, Recitation, History of Islamic Sects and Sufism, which are the most basic branches of science related to Islam. Master's and PhD programs with thesis are carried out in our department. The aim of the department is to produce information based on basic sources, to deal with religious issues at an academic level, to share the information produced and the results achieved with the scientific world and our society, and to ensure that the education programs under its responsibility are implemented with the utmost care. The department also exchanges ideas and cooperates with other scientific fields and stakeholders operating in university in order to achieve the targeted success in scientific studies and programs.

Both the Republic of Turkey and foreign students are accepted to the Master's and Doctorate Programs conducted in department. In the programs carried out, the courses are given in Turkish language. Our lecturers working in the programs are experts in their fields, able to apply scientific research and methods of students, benefit from the basic resources of religion, develop an academic attitude towards understanding in the face of different religious interpretations and thoughts, stay as objective as possible in their research, be consistent in scientific reasoning, and solve contemporary problems related to their field of study. They make the necessary effort to grow up as scientists who can produce reasonable and applicable solutions without leaving the current day, and who can adopt the principle of prioritizing the interests of their country and nation.
